

BRIDGING THE GAP: Basic to Intermediate Medical Interpreter Training

Would you like to put your bilingual skills to use?
Come and attend the most respected program for medical interpreting in the U.S.

Whether you are a bilingual employee or someone starting out, you need training to interpret in healthcare. Training is vital for interpreters. Without it, you can make errors that lead to misunderstandings, or even put lives in danger.

Bridging the Gap is a 40-hour training program that prepares individuals to become qualified medical interpreters. This language-neutral course, taught in English, is open to speakers of all languages. Participants will learn the necessary skills to become a qualified medical interpreter by participating in group activities, gaining practice interpreting from day-one onward, and through the instruction and insight of our experienced trainers.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

Upon successful completion of this course, participants will be able to:

- Identify barriers to effective communication in interpreted sessions.
- Describe the roles of the interpreter.
- Identify the common values found in the code of ethics for health care interpreters.
- Develop and implement techniques for facilitating a successful interpreting session.
- Identify various common diseases and treatments associated with each body system.
